SOLIDAR Weekly Round Up 19-10-2012

Editorial: Trust in what? Trust in whom?

The European Council summit, which ended last night, saw an agreement on banking supervision and a decision on a Single Supervisory Mechanism. Stability is necessary, but where were the safeguards for social stability? That concern made it all the more important for the Progressive Alliance to stand together as they did last night and coordinate their action with those Heads of State and institutional representatives of the PES family. If citizens are to have a real choice in the next European elections in 2014, the political alternatives must be made clearer. The road to recovery is not all about trust in the financial markets, as the German Chancellor keeps steadily repeating, it is about the trust of Europe's citizens in the ability of politicians to solve the crisis and the capacity of the European institutions to serve that aim.

Burglaries at Three Anti-Tobacco NGOs in Brussels Could Be Related to Lobbying Activities by the Tobacco Industry

According to an article by the EU Observer the burglaries at three anti-tobacco NGOs in Brussels, which occurred yesterday, Thursday 18 October, could have been a tobacco industry attack. Several laptops and files containing confidential information were stolen in the course of the thefts. This incident could be related to the ongoing negotiations for a tough EU Tobacco control bill and a tobacco lobbying scandal involving Commissioner John Dalli, who had to step down this week over the accusations.

Event Report: Social Services crucial for Europe 2020 Objectives

This week, a Round Table report has been launched that brings forward the most relevant findings and messages of European parliamentarians and experts, who discussed how social services contribute to smart, sustainable and inclusive growth. The event was organised by Social Services Europe, a European network of which SOLIDAR is a co-founder and which brings together nine Europe-wide networks of not-for-profit providers of social and health care services. One of the conclusions of the Round Table is that achieving the Europe 2020 objectives and notably smart, sustainable and inclusive growth decisively depends on social services.

Roundtable: Protecting The Rights of Domestic Workers - What Is The Role Of The Eu?

In cooperation with the International Trade Union Confederation (ITUC) , SOLIDAR together with the Global Network advocates for the ratification of the ILO Convention 189 concerning decent work for domestic workers in the EU and worldwide through the 12 by 12 campaign. As such, the roundtable at the European Parliament on 17 October aimed to create political momentum for the ratification and to examine which role the EU can play in guaranteeing the labour and human rights of domestic workers, of whom many are women and migrants. The roundtable was followed by a photo opportunity, in which Members of the European Parliament endorsed the ratification of the C189.
